

PUNE AUTHORS' ASSOCIATION

Introduction :- Pune Authors' Association, a group of authors from Pune was formed in Jan 2025 by Cdr Shiv Mathur, a veteran of the Indian Navy and an author of four books. He realized that there is a need to work in a collaborative way to revive book reading, promote indie authors and sell books through some innovative ways. The group began with a modest number of about 25 authors and it has been evolving constantly since its inception. Many authors joined and left and many have stayed put. The process will continue as the group evolves further and stabilises with a stronger presence and outcomes. As on 07 Jun 26, we have 53 authors in the group.

Goals : Following are the main goals of the group

- a) Collective efforts through collaboration.
- b) Participation and passion are a must for the authors in this group
- c) Promote indie authors
- d) Help authors with all publishing services at a minimal cost. We have authors who can format the manuscripts, edit, proof read, as well as design book covers.
- e) We have a few printers who print as low as 50 copies and at a very cost-effective rate.
- f) Organise literary events in housing societies and educational institutions as well as corporate offices.
- g) Donate book to key libraries like airport libraries as an avenue for promotion.
- h) Focus on organizing literary festivals in schools and colleges, where the actual book reading can be revived.
- i) Help authors to understand the exploitation by the publishers and how to escape that.

Achievements : Following has been achieved since Jan 25 till 07 Jun 26.

- a) Organised 15 events in housing societies, colleges and corporate offices; and sold books approx. 840 books
- b) Participated in three major book fairs organized by the National Book Trust of India in Pune, Goa and Dehradun, and sold 700 books.
- c) More events and book fairs are lined up till Jul 26.
- d) Donated and setup libraries at six major airports in India. Donated almost 1500 books for this initiative. Kolkata, Chennai, Pune, Thiruvananthapuram, Mangaluru, and Bhubaneshwar.
- e) Maintaining a catalogue of fiction and non-fiction books.
- f) All efforts are on cost sharing basis, so the whole initiative remains a low-cost affair and affordable to the authors who participate in literary events and book fairs. Participation in literary events was free till Apr 26. Now there will be a fee of 500/- per event for an author to participate. The amount goes to the author who organizes the event as a recognition of his/her effort.

- g) Created a LinkedIn page that currently works as a landing page and also promotes the group amongst professionals.

Way Ahead :

- a) Build a web-site for automating the operations and create a system that will become independent of any manual intervention. The rules will be implemented and all activities, transactions, database, tracking, supply chain, all will get rolled up into the web-site. All sales will happen through the website.
- b) Marketing of the group through the website and LinkedIn page.
- c) Start a book shop, cum library cum café in Goa, that will be the authors book shop, café-library and it will be managed by the authors of this group.
- d) Engage more with schools and colleges to engage them in literary activities and revival of book reading. Thereby, freeing them for mobile phones, scrolling and social media.
- e) Form a foundation for promoting book reading and helping indie authors with publishing services.
- f) Welcome authors from across the globe to join this group and take it to great heights.

“Cdr Shiv Mathur, is an Indian Navy veteran. He did his B.Tech in Electrical Engineering from REC/NIT Warangal in 1989. He worked in the Indian Navy from 1989 to 2005 and retired in the rank of Commander. He also worked in IT and Telecom sectors, in senior positions. Companies like IBM, TATA and Reliance Jio. He quit his corporate job in March 2019 where he was employed as Asst Vice President. He had a strong spiritual calling in 2015 which took him into the depths of the spiritual world and many beautiful secrets got unraveled in his journey of self-discovery. Himalayas became his second home. Meditative state of mind is something which came to him as a surprise but he discovered the process which he subconsciously went through leading to this gift of peace of mind. He wants to share this experiential knowledge with others so that they can also get transformed if they are sincerely seeking.

Meditation & Spirituality : A Philosophy – Based on the experiences of the author during his self-enquiry and spiritual travels to the Himalayas, the process of removal of unwanted thoughts through self-enquiry has been explained in this book. He attained a state of thought control, and understood the process.

Sanjay Kris Tewari, who frequently writes under the pen name of KrisTee is a former naval officer, with a keen interest in historical subjects - maritime history, naval and military history, heritage and maritime affairs. Growing up in a military family, he spent his early years in far-away cantonments and describes his early years as an average student and sportsman, while being an above average dreamer, with a propensity to disassociate himself from the present while staring open-mouthed at a lizard stalking its prey, or while gazing at ancient forts and buildings.

He writes frequently for journals on maritime issues.

In The Wake Of The Swordfish (1992)

The Second World War heralded the induction of technology into the fledgling Royal Indian Navy (RIN). At the same time, it highlighted the lack of preparedness of the British in the Indian Ocean. All training establishments of the RIN were bunched cheek by jowl in the confines of the Bombay Dockyard and had to be re-organized at different locations to prepare the RIN to undertake its role.

The Electrical Branch, was the first to be set up as an independent unit in 1942, on an island near Jamnagar, on land donated by the then Jamsaheb. This book chronicles the details of setting up a training base, the challenges faced and the path traversed till 1992.

Through The Labyrinth of History (2010)

The Naval Dockyard at Mumbai, is a prominent landmark in South Mumbai, better known by the name of its main entrance, Lion Gate. Running along the busy Shahid Bhagat Singh Road is a high wall that marks the periphery of the Dockyard. Beyond the wall, lies another world where, submarines jostle with frigates for berthing space at the various wharves along the sea front. The ancient blends into the modern in the heritage buildings that house workshops and test benches for maintaining the sword arm of India's naval fleet. This is the story of the Naval Dockyard, the oldest military unit in India, that was started by the East India Company in 1735, and was once the central pillar supporting British rule in India. Today the Yard is at the nerve centre of Indian Naval operations and houses some of the oldest functioning docks in Asia.

The Baby Burped On My Battledress (2020)

Life in the Services, away from the place of work is a cheerful mix of trunks, government furniture, school uniforms, ceremonial uniforms, service belts, berets, medal ribbons, hair ribbons and the myriad other things that occupy a serviceman's home.

Servicemen and women and their families are close knit communities, where time spent together is cherished and friends get together for an outing or a party at short notice. This is a book on the lighter side of life in the services, away from the serious business of soldiering and naval operations. The book is a collection of short stories spanning a period of 75 years from the time the author's father joined the army to the author's own time spent in service.

Gateways to the Sea (2024)

Ports and Docks are the hubs around which lives of coastal communities are built. As Centre of commerce, trade and enterprise, they attract travelers and merchants from around the world. Some of the ancient ports in Mumbai and its surrounding districts have archaeological evidence of trade with ancient Greece and Rome.

Over time these ancient ports have decayed and, with the siltation of river mouths and creeks, some ancient ports are lost to antiquity. This book is an effort by the Maritime Mumbai Museum Society, wherein eighteen members of the society have come together to record the history of seventeen ports and docks around Mumbai.

AUTHOR : BINDU UNNIKRISHNAN

AUTHOR BIO

Bindu Unnikrishnan is an acclaimed author, poet, educator, and marathoner with over two decades of teaching experience. Author of My Treasure Trove of Emotions and Luminara – Poetry That Touches the Soul, she has co-authored more than fifty anthologies. A winner of several national poetry and creative writing competitions and crowned Mrs. Maharashtra 2023 (Elite), she continues to inspire through her words and work.

Spilled Coffee and Some Laughs is a sharp, warm, and irreverently funny collection of essays that finds meaning in everyday chaos—the kind that happens between reheated coffee, misplaced keys, unsolicited advice, and the relentless expectations of modern life. With humour as both shield and truth-teller, Bindu Unnikrishnan writes about love, marriage, motherhood, work, womanhood, relationships, and the quiet absurdities we rarely post online but live every day. Each piece captures moments when life interrupts plans: a teacher wrestling six yards of a saree, a perfectly “organised” home where nothing can be found, men discovering their inner MasterChef on Sundays, friendships strained by detox culture, mismatched relationships tuned to different emotional frequencies, and women navigating bodies, ambition, and identity with resilience and wit. The laughter here is not staged or performative—it is the kind that slips out in exhaustion, recognition, and relief. Rooted in contemporary Indian life yet universally relatable, this book does not offer life hacks or self-help formulas. Instead, it celebrates imperfection, emotional honesty, and survival through humour. Spilled Coffee and Some Laughs is for readers who know that joy often hides in inconvenience—and that sometimes, the most meaningful moments happen when the coffee spills and life takes over.

Down the years, a lot has been written about the Armed Forces. There have been inspirational tales of valour and sacrifice and there have been witty spinoffs on black tin trunks and soldierly romances. Cantonment Chronicles takes you through a third facet.... giving you a ringside view of everyday life lived not by the guardians of the nation but by the wives and children of those who don the combats and camouflages.

From an exclusive brand of wit and humour to the riveting accounts of gutsy fortitude, these real-life stories revolve around extraordinary women and bring you a slice of life set in far-flung areas; a life devoid of PVRs and shopping arcades but resplendent with thrills and roller-coaster excitement. There are those who gave up careers and comfort as well as those who defied the odds and carved their own niche. Cantonment Chronicles is a tribute to all those whose lives and destinies are irrevocably entwined with those of the guardians of our borders.

EnQ is the universal energy quotient which permeates all living forms. This book draws from vedic scriptures as well as Buddhist and western schools of thought to enumerate some time-tested and doable ways of enhancing this divine energy within so that we can achieve happiness, health and success. The universe can be made to conspire in our favour by optimising the intrinsic EnQ and align it favourably in order to reap cascading benefits. That is the time-tested truth. The Physical, Emotional, Intellectual and Spiritual quotients are the tangible domains of life and are strung together by a fifth and by far the most powerful faculté, which is the EnQ. This vibrant vitality within each one of us is an extension of the cosmic force and makes us what we are. Acknowledging the EnQ is the first step and subsequently the three Ms of Meditation, Mindfulness and Manifestation together with the two Gs of gratitude and generosity will energise, elevates and empower us.

Redefining Wealth & The Rat Race is a spontaneous expression of thoughts and different perceptions on wealth. It is written with the view of removing the false beliefs and concepts revolving around wealth. It aims at realizing people of the importance of peace of mind and contentment in life. The central thesis of this book states that at any given time in life, wealth is only in the mind, only an illusion, and that the desire for excessive wealth only leads to discontentment and misery. The society today is under the magic charm of materialism. The time has come for us to analyze and realize the unrealistic rush for material things because materialism has failed to satisfy self-quest and bring content to the entire human race.

An alumna of NIT Warangal and IIT Kharagpur, she began her career at Hindustan Aeronautics Limited (HAL), moved on to lead global programs and technology transformation at Sonata Software, and later served as COO at Altumind. Certified as an Independent Director (IICA), Padma specializes in process excellence, talent development strategies, and effective organization building. Leadership in Action reflects her bold vision: to inspire and equip leaders at every stage of their journey.

Inspiring Stories and Strategies for Growth

New Book by Padma C Combines Real-Life Case Studies, Practical Advice, and Pathways to Success “Leadership today is about enabling progress, not just achieving personal success.” What makes a true leader? Is it vision, action, or perseverance?

In her groundbreaking new book Leadership in Action: Inspiring Stories and Strategies for Growth, Padma C brings together all three. Drawing on decades of professional experience and personal observation, she curates extraordinary stories of individuals who turned challenges into opportunities and built legacies of impact. Part handbook, part memoir, and part tribute to human grit and enterprise, it explores resilience and accomplishment through real-life stories of achievers from across industries and geographies — an avionics pioneer who broke barriers, an accomplished ophthalmologist transforming eye care, a lawyer fighting for justice, a Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC)

trailblazer, and multiple IT innovators redefining technology. Together, their journeys illustrate how leadership is not bound by role or title, but by action, purpose, and courage. “Through these lived stories and actionable insights, my goal is to empower readers to recognize the leader within and create ecosystems of development around them.” The book offers tools and strategies that readers can apply immediately — from nurturing talent and fostering innovation to building effective organizations and navigating career crossroads.

What if the destination you've been chasing was never meant to be found—but felt? The Unnamed Train is a deeply reflective and philosophical journey that follows Arjun, a young man who abandons a life of achievements, noise, and restless ambition to board a mysterious train with no name and no fixed route. Guided by an enigmatic conductor and joined by passengers who each embody a lesson of life—the gardener, the musician, the artist, the entrepreneur, and the children—Arjun begins to understand that true fulfilment is not found in reaching somewhere, but in becoming someone. As the train moves through shifting landscapes—from chaos to silence, from striving to surrender—Arjun learns to see success, love, loss, and purpose through new eyes. Each chapter unfolds as a mirror to our own journeys, inviting readers to pause, breathe, and rediscover meaning in the ordinary rhythm of life. Profound yet simple, poetic yet practical, The Unnamed Train is a book about letting go of the map, listening to the quiet between destinations, and awakening to the beauty of the present moment. A journey that doesn't take you somewhere new—it takes you back to yourself.

The Jar of Secret Numbers by Dr. Vinay Vaidya is a captivating book that transforms mathematics into an enchanting adventure for young explorers. Through fascinating stories where kings are humbled by secrets hidden in rice grains, sunflowers guard mysterious patterns, and spaceships whisper tales across the stars, this book reveals the delight and wonder waiting inside every number. Perfect for children, parents, and teachers alike, it turns complex mathematical ideas into friendly adventures and hands-on puzzles. Each story masterfully blends timeless folklore, real science, and inspiring modern wonders, making maths feel alive in gardens, kitchens, faraway planets, and even inside a humble pencil. Dr. Vaidya's warm, welcoming approach makes mathematics and science a joy, especially for children who may never have seen themselves as 'maths people' before. Whether solving ancient riddles, exploring DNA's secret alphabet, or discovering maths in new ways, this book demonstrates that curiosity and imagination lead the way to understanding the magic hidden within numbers.

What would you do:

If you are thrown out of your house with 3 young daughters in the middle of the night? If the light of your life is extinguished in a freak moment? Does one give up? What helps you cope? 14 Women, 14 Lives

What struck us in our face-to-face interviews with these protagonists is their personal fortitude when faced with extreme challenges.

We, as authors, were drawn to this conviction. We HAD to chronicle their battles. Their stories are testimonies that life's vagaries CAN be handled. Maybe by drawing on inner reserves, maybe by leaning on others for support, maybe through alternative thinking.

"In the ruins of the Mayan world, traces of India rise—not as myth, but as a forgotten chapter of shared history."

Mayan Routes Indian Roots is a compelling geopolitical travelogue that journeys across the vibrant landscapes of Central America—Mexico, Belize, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, and Panama—while tracing unexpected connections to India's cultural, historical, and spiritual heritage.

From sacred temples and cosmic calendars to rituals, language, and symbolism, the narrative uncovers striking parallels between two distant civilizations. With every border crossed, the book explores how myths, memory, and human migration have left clues that transcend geography and time.

This is more than a travel memoir—it is a cultural excavation, a historical inquiry, and a bold reimagining of shared pasts.

As a unique complement to the book, a beautifully curated set of Mayan Routes Postcards captures the visual essence of this extraordinary journey—featuring evocative images of ancient ruins, indigenous life, sacred geometry, and the living spirit of connection between India and the Mayan world. These postcards offer readers a tangible way to experience and share the story beyond the pages.

I am Jaishree Laxmikant, an author based in Mumbai. After a successful stint in the corporate world, as a Team Leader and process trainer, I gave up my job to stay close to her growing kids.

I started writing as a hobby in 2016. Initially, the articles were about general topics and some fiction, but three years later in 2019, I started writing articles related to Indian Armed Forces. Of late, I have been focusing on bringing stories of brave hearts to the fore.

My previous book 'Coomar – The story of Maj Sudhir Kumar Walia AC SM*' is the first exclusive biography of a Special Forces officer late Maj Sudhir Kumar Walia, available in English and Hindi.

My next book Operation Sarp Vinash, co-authored with Lt Gen H S Lidder PVSM, UYSM, YSM, VSM is an endeavour to bring out much more details about Operation Sarp Vinash, conducted in 2003 and spoken about even now, with awe and admiration.

I love to read, listen to music and spend time with my furry baby.

Terrorism reared its ugly hand in the Kashmir Valley sometime in 1989/90. However, it was only in 1997/98 that the areas South of Pir Panjal range started witnessing a major spurt in terrorist activity. This was probably due to deliberate designs of Pak ISI. The area was initially used only as a staging post to facilitate infiltration of terrorists, arms and ammunition into the Valley and subsequently, to widen the arc of militancy, Lashker-e-Toiba terrorists were positioned in general area Hil Kaka sometime in 1996.

Thereafter, the inability of the security forces to remove terrorists from their secure hiding places in Hil Kaka led to the growth and spread of militancy in Poonch and Rajouri districts. Hil Kaka soon emerged as a major terrorist stronghold and was being referred to as a "liberated zone" by the locals. The overall ISI design was presumably to consolidate the area of Hil Kaka and create a secure base in the rear of our defences in Poonch sector, in the likelihood of actual war, thereby achieving the classical 'turning movement'.

This book is a fascinating first-hand account from the man who understood the serious threat to the nation and thereafter conceived, planned and oversaw the execution of OP SARPVINASH and in doing so successfully defeated ISI designs in Poonch. OP SARPVINASH was more than just about neutralising terrorists but also about reestablishing the writ of the security forces and the civil administration in the hinterland. Successful conclusion of OP SARPVINASH was the beginning of the end of militancy in the two districts of Poonch and Rajouri.

'Men may come and man may go, but I go on forever'.... Alfred Tennyson A soldier's life is not just about the wars he has won or the number of enemies he has killed; it is also about the values that he held important and all that he loved. He is not just his Uniform and weapons; he too is all flesh and blood. This book is an attempt to capture the personality of Major Sudhir Walia, beyond his bravery and other warrior-like qualities. His story is that of perseverance, determination, compassion and bravery, one which could inspire many youngsters, irrespective of whether they would like to be a part of the Armed Forces or not. As Misty Copeland says, 'Start Unknown, Finish Unforgettable', Maj Sudhir Walia's life is the finest example of this. COOMAR is life story of a brave heart who was very close to me. He is now a legend, an inspiration in the army and outside. Sudhir was talented, happy go lucky, and yet very responsible. There was also certain righteousness about him. Jaishree has done deep research and made great efforts to reach out to Sudhir's family, and his friends all over India over last year and a half. This, I am happy to note, has also made her a fond member of Sudhir's family and his friends. COOMAR is a very readable book about

AUTHOR : RITU RAWAT

AUTHOR BIO

Ritu Rawat is a litigation lawyer by profession and a storyteller by instinct. Having taught corporate law as visiting faculty at some of India's reputed universities, she has spent years inside and outside the courtroom—watching, listening, and learning from people and their peculiarities. For her, every interaction, every silence, and even the most ordinary of daily happenings carry a hidden story waiting to be told. Though she has been writing poems and articles for years, Justice and Jokes - A Lawyer's Diary is her first published book, born out of her experiences in the chaotic yet fascinating world of Indian courts. True to her voice, she writes what she sees and feels—without exaggeration, without sugar-coating, and certainly without the need to please.

Ritu believes stories don't always arrive with drumrolls—sometimes they appear in the unlikeliest corners of life, in fleeting human moments, in the humor hidden inside hardship, and in the irony that binds both together. Her second book, Tails and Tales, is already on its way, fueled by her constant engagement with people, society, and the courtroom drama of everyday life.

Outside her professional work, Ritu is a curious observer who finds meaning in small details that most would miss, whether in a crowded courtroom, a quiet street, or even a random chai break. She often jokes that she doesn't need to invent stories...they walk up to her uninvited.

This book is a reflection of lived truths—stories I have seen, felt, and carried home from courtrooms across Uttar Pradesh. It's not a legal commentary, nor a work of fiction. It is a raw, unfiltered account of the many faces of Indian litigation, written not to please, but to provoke thought. If you find humour here, it is real. If you find pain, that too is real. I am not seeking apologies or applause—only your time, your attention, and your openness.

Nisha Shenoy is an Amazon Bestselling Author, 6 published books, TEDx speaker, Podcaster, Asia Book of Records holder, and Founder of TVÂM: Inner Revolution Hub focused on building Inner Mastery over Outward Success, a learning platform helping individuals discover their authentic self. A CA-turned-HR Leader with over 18 years in Corporate Leadership across Operations, Training & HR before choosing a purpose-led path in Storytelling, Emotional Mastery & Embodied Consciousness.

The War of Worth (Memoir) is not about fixing your body or controlling your mind. It is about ending the silent battle you've been fighting with yourself all along. Born from a moment of reckoning after her first TEDx talk that didn't feel like a victory, this memoir traces one woman's journey from high achievement and hidden anxiety to embodied peace and self-worth. Through the raw, honest account of her journey, you will see how 'Shame' often comes disguised as silent ambition, crippling self-doubt, making even success feel hollow before the stranger in the mirror. Through radical self-inquiry, emotional honesty, and insights drawn from a clinical psychology journal, Nisha Shenoy unpacks Body dysmorphia, high-functioning anxiety, and the exhausting chase for validation like never before. This is not a quick-fix self-help manual. It is a guided descent into the messy middle of any transformation journey— where accountability replaces blame, awareness dissolves shame, and healing becomes critically real.

If you are tired of performing empty self-love and hollow body positivity rituals and ready to experience self-worth from the inside-out, this book shows you how to end the internal war — simply by coming home to yourself.

The Courage to Unlock Greatness is not just a motivational or self-help book. It is a guided journey into emotional mastery.

In a world that calls it stress, burnout, and anxiety, we keep trying to think our way out of pain—while the body continues to silently carry what the mind constantly avoids. This book introduces a powerful yet practical emotional framework inspired by Dr. David R. Hawkins' Map of Consciousness, simplifying it for modern life through real world application and ancient Vedantic wisdom.

At the heart of this book lies one pivotal shift: Courage. Not epic performance. Not heroic confidence. But the quiet moment you crossover from blame to responsibility, from force to power and from doing to being the change you want to experience. The author gently handholds you through the lower emotional spectrum—from shame, guilt, fear, anger, desire, and pride—to the tipping point of courage. This book helps you understand where you are stuck by identifying the underlying emotions through awareness of your body and how to consciously rise from the lower emotional states and access the higher ones through a deep understanding of the body-mind intersection. It cleverly bridges modern psychology with somatic awareness, and spiritual insight to show why confidence fades so quickly, peace feels temporary, and success still feels empty until courage is discovered within 'the Self'.

If you're tired of oscillating between hustle and heaviness, this book offers a grounded path from survival to alignment.

Because greatness isn't built by pushing harder. It is simply unlocked by rising higher.

AUTHOR BIO

Satish Kumar Yadav is a former Commander of the Indian Navy and a seasoned corporate leader with over 30 years of experience. From navigating warships and specialising in combat diving missions to leading risk management and governance across large organisations, his career has been defined by high-stakes decision-making and operational leadership.

Having led critical functions in both defence and corporate ecosystems, he brings a rare perspective on leadership under pressure, organisational discipline, and human behaviour in complex environments.

His writing reflects this duality—where structured thinking meets lived experience. In Humour Beyond Borders, he uses humour as a powerful narrative tool to distil leadership lessons that are practical, relatable, and timeless.

The author is an alumni of Air Force School (erstwhile Satya Bal Bharti) at Air Force Academy, Hyderabad; Sainik School, Tilaiya and National Defence Academy, Pune. He may be contacted through email- 'satish123yadav@gmail.com'.

Humour Beyond Borders – Military Anecdotes & Life Lessons is not just a collection of stories from life in uniform; it is a rare window into the human side of leadership forged under pressure.

Through vivid, often hilarious real-life incidents from the Indian Navy and beyond, the book reveals how humour quietly coexists with discipline, danger, and decision-making at the highest levels. Each anecdote carries a deeper insight—on leadership, accountability, adaptability, and the art of staying composed when everything around you is not.

Bridging the worlds of military precision and corporate complexity, this book speaks to leaders, professionals, and anyone navigating high-stakes environments. It reminds us that sometimes, the most powerful lessons are not delivered in boardrooms or battle plans—but in the unexpected moments that make us pause, laugh, and reflect.

In the heart of Tamil Nadu, a famous temple dedicated to Sri Ranganatha houses a sanctum for a Mughal princess worshipped as the Lord's consort. Do we know why? The description of the riches in the Arabian Nights was inspired by the loot from temples in South India. Do we know the combined wealth taken from three temples of South India accounted for 1200 tons in gold alone? The answers to these, and many more such questions are etched in the stone walls of these temples. The threads that spread out from their sanctum have cast a spider's web connecting each of us to our roots by blending facts and faith in marvelous tales. Through the shifting sands of time, these stories have metamorphosed into fantastic oral narratives. Having grown up listening to such stories, I have often wondered how history will testify them. To uncover them is a monumental task, but not impossible. Through historical evidence based research I have tried to untangle these threads in this book. After years of tracing them systematically through the works of acclaimed historians, another desire arose—that future generations should know these stories through the eyes of history. This book is the product of that desire. I hope that these fifteen stories about temples in South India will be retold and explored more through the pages of history, for many years to come. To buy on Amazon: <https://amzn.in/d/gRJ3Dno>

In the course of life, there are numerous instances when questions prop out on the content and meaning of life itself, especially concerning the teachings in scriptures and religious precepts. Consciously or unconsciously such questions visit everyone's mind, sometime or other.

Paulo Coelho says there are symbols and signs everywhere, providing answers to such questions.

Sometimes, people reach out and leave a message. At others, one's own contemplation reveals certain suggestions. The Universal Consciousness, on its part, prompts the thoughts to facilitate greater understanding. It manifests itself through a passage in a book, a poem or in the works of saints like Adi Shankara, Kabir and Rumi or in the writings of great philosophers like Khalil Gibran, Osho or even a shop keeper who happens in our life at the most appropriate moment.

This book, On Matters of Faith, is a collection of thoughts owing to such beneficial interventions in my life. They were penned into my blog as and when they occurred over a period of time.

Having contemplated upon them, I have taken the liberty of researching into certain backgrounds and added them as Notes. I do hope these reflections will help in finding answers to at least some questions that readers may have. A discerning reader would benefit more by visiting the Notes for an in-depth understanding. The Name: Every Child has right to a name

Raju is also a name just like Abul Kalam Azad, Rajiv Gandhi, Azim Premji, etc; except that it belonged to a five year old boy. A name that no one knew who gave him; a name that was pronounced as though it was the name of the filthiest worm in the gutters that overflowed in that town; a name whose owner spent much of his sleeping hours awake amidst the mongrels in the street....till Ramesh and Raghu met him. Swayed by the ideals taught in their social work course, Ramesh and Raghu thought that they had a case of a destitute child for counseling when they came across Raju. However, the hatred adults, particularly women and drunken men, that glowed in Raju's eyes startled them into a world that was quite different from the one in which they had grown up. What they ended up getting into was a world which a name could be a shame and more so when it belonged to a male child. This story is about the five year old much abused son of a sex worker whom two students of social work meet, grow fiercely fond of and manage to get into a school and hopefully an honorable life. The story is based on a real life incident and is dedicated to children of lesser mortals. Amazon Paperback Price: INR 375. The cover shown is the Kindle Version.

AUTHOR : SANJAY KOUL

AUTHOR BIO

Sanjay Koul hails from District Budgam in the Union Territory of Jammu & Kashmir. He spent his early years in Srinagar and Jammu before moving across India to pursue education and career opportunities. A Mechanical Engineer by qualification, he has grown into a successful business leader, working in major cities including Delhi, Bengaluru, Pune, and Mumbai. Once an avid runner and always a passionate traveler, Sanjay draws inspiration from life's journeys, both personal and professional. He is married to Rochita and they are proud parents of their son, Varenyam, who remains at the heart of his stories and reflections.

The Missing Link is a heartfelt memoir that traces Sanjay Koul's journey as he navigates the delicate balance between professional ambitions and personal life. Set against the backdrop of his frequent travels between Pune and Mumbai, the book captures the humor, struggles, and reflections of an urban professional living in two worlds at once. Through vivid storytelling, Sanjay recounts experiences ranging from the thrill of achieving long-held dreams and the chaos of Friday evening commutes to the trauma of a near-fatal accident and the joy of simple family moments. Blending nostalgia, wit, and emotional depth, The Missing Link explores how unfinished roads, literal and metaphorical, mirror the gaps we all encounter in our lives. It is a story of resilience, relationships, and rediscovering meaning in the everyday. At its core, the book reminds readers that even when life feels incomplete, it is these very "missing links" that shape us and make the journey worthwhile.

It is a collection of small stories in which real life characters have been described. Such characters who can inspire others to fight against odds and to develop a fighting spirit in life. These stories will inspire doctors in particular, to treat their patients, in most adverse conditions and without any proper support. In few of the stories complex human relations have been shown, giving an insight into certain relations like father and his son. There are beautiful Love stories, in which love blossoms without caring for boundaries between countries or when age is not a factor to fall in love.

GEN Z: Pause – Slow Down to Slay is a reflective and empowering guide for a generation growing up in a world that never stops scrolling. In an age of instant delivery, endless comparison, and constant pressure to “figure it out” quickly, this book offers something radical—permission to pause.

Through relatable stories, practical insights, and honest conversations about burnout, impatience, self-doubt, and ambition, Dr. Geetanjali Mehra encourages young readers to redefine success. This is not a hustle manual. It is a reminder that growth takes time, clarity comes from stillness, and confidence builds through consistent effort—not overnight results.

Written in a voice that balances warmth with wisdom, the book helps Gen Z understand that slowing down is not falling behind. It is preparing to move forward with intention. Because success is not about speed—it is about direction, resilience, and becoming who you are meant to be.
